they offer horseback riding, mountain biking, yurt excursions, kayaking, rafting, dog-sledding, white water rafting, trap shooting, western barbeques and team building adventures. In the winter they offer excursions to the yurt as well as snowshoe, ski, yoga, horseback riding and fly fishing adventures. Access to the yurt in the summer includes hiking or driving up a dirt road. In the winter one can Nordic ski, snowshoe, or a snow-cat can bring you up the road.

This yurt is brand new as of 2010 and in immaculate condition. The solar lighting means you can actually turn on lights. The toilet is more civilized than most. And it even sports a laminate floor, which is a first for a Utah yurt. The yurt itself is in great condition with a fun deck around it for lounging, a picnic table and a huge fire pit to roast marshmallows on while kicking back to look at the stars.

The yurt sits on a deck in the middle of rolling hills where wildlife is abundant. On my trip I saw moose and porcupine. Development of added retreat amenities are encroaching. The yurt is located near a reservoir where you can kayak or fish. A stream for fly-fishing is also available. 25 miles of trails for hiking, biking, snowshoeing or Nordic skiing are available. The yurt is available for individuals as well as corporate retreats. We now allow dogs for a $25 pet cleaning fee.
